REA SAYS L. I. R. R. IS 50 YEARS AHEAD

Pennsy President, Testifying in Minority's $28,000,000 Suit, Defends Plans.

SAVED FROM SCRAPHEAP

Samuel Rea, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, testified before Supreme Court Justice Lehman yesterday in a suit brought by Dick Bros. & Co., the Stock Exchange firm, in behalf of the minority stockholders of the Long Island Railroad to recover $28,000,000 from Mr. Rea and other directors of the Long Island who are also officials of the Pennsylvania. He said that he never found any conflict between his duties as president of the Pennsylvania. The minority stockholders contend that the vast expenditures made by the Long Island in recent years were really in the interest of the Pennsylvania. In his textestimony President Rea said:

"As I was a director of both roads you may rest assured that whenever I attended a meeting of the directors of the Long Island company I voted and acted for the best interest of all the stockholders. "The mistake the minority stock-Bolders make is in supposing that a road can remain stationary. The directors in spending the $28,000,000 which the minority shareholders think is insufficiently remunerative were planning at least fifty years ahead—as all good rail-road directors ought to do It was only clently remunerative were planning at least fifty years ahead—as all good rail-road directors ought to do. It was only a question of time when the improvements would have had to be made or the Long Island would have been relegated to the scrap heap."

Mr. Rea testified that he made an inspection trip over the Long Island when the Pennsylvania first got control and found the road "very much run down."
"It was what we call a local road," he said. "The road was not paying expenses, it had little credit and traffic was very uncertain. During the sum-mer months the traffic was large, but during the remainder of the year it was light. In making our improvements we preserved all the local business of the road, which was very beneficial."

They will be valuable assets in the tuture."
